The French call this process "methode ancestral," and it's likely been around far longer than other, more complex methods of producing sparkling wine.

- 71 Rasteau Vin Doux Naturel Domaine De Beurenard, France 2015 Bottle: 500ml £55.00
The grapes for this sweet, fortified Rasteau grow on especially well-exposed terraces of stony, clay-chalk soil. They are entirely Grenache Noir, in small, highly concentrated bunches. The grapes are hand-picked when very ripe, bursting with sunshine and contain natural sugar before alcohol is added to arrest fermentation. The juice then continues to macerate for a few days to fix the wine's magnificent purple colour and tannins. Two years' ageing in oak casks gives full expression to this sweet wine.
